

Mating habits of birds

During the classes, participants learned about the whole range of behaviors of birds that strictly relate to the courtship. As it turns out, each bird has a slightly different repertoire and season "festivities". Considering all species, it is interesting that in Poland birds have an affair with each other throughout the year. The presentation were in the form of avian calendar and presented species of particular interest. As a rule, the audience was told about birds occurring in the area of Mikołów, as well as observations that can be made even in the immediate vicinity, eg. in the local park.

It is worth noting that despite the spectacular character and significance of avian courtship of animals in general, this theme often is not taken into consideration, and, in literature there is no information about it casually or it is treated merely as an episode in the life of a bird - a description of behaviors (ethological analysis).
